GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian water user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return flows from use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream system.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on non-riparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. After the formation of the California Water Commission back on December 19, 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State. Appropriative rights can be granted to waters "foreign" to the natural stream system.

Statements of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users as set forth in Water Code section 5100 with specific exceptions. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversions, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include: (1) Statements of Water Diversion and Use, (2) Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California, and (3) Appropriation of Water in California.

Re: Illegal Diversion of Their Domestic Water Source, SO11135

I phoned the Kelley residence to obtain clarification of the intent of their letter to DWR dated May 5, 2000. Jane Kelley explained, the intent of the letter was to put the diverter on notice that the diversion should cease. The Kelleys are not requesting any action from the SWRCB at this time. She said after posting their notice regarding the diversion, they were able to identify the person who had altered the course of the spring that is a domestic water source for them. Mrs. Kelley stated that this person had diverted the discharge from this spring out of its natural channel and into a "rock pile". She said the diverter did not own the land where the spring naturally discharged nor did he own the land in the vicinity of the rock pile where the water had been diverted. It is not clear to anyone why the diversion was made. She said the diverter was a Vietnam vet who had made other inappropriate intrusion on property rights of neighbors. Mrs. Kelley stated that the spring was being restored to its natural channel and that they were not requesting the SWRCB's involvement at this time. I gave her my phone number and told her to call me if there were problems with the resolution of this matter.

To Whom it May Concern:

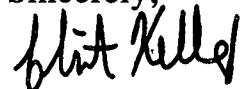

Beginning or before early April of this year, someone has diverted a portion of water from the spring area where the water for our domestic use arises. The purpose of this letter is to inform you that this diversion has occurred and is adverse to our water rights.

We therefore have requested that the water be returned to its original, natural course. Should this not occur, we will seek such remedies as the law allows.

Enclosed you will find a copy of the notice which is posted in the affected area and copies of letters to the owners of record of the contiguous parcels.

To Whom it May Concern:

This diversion of water from its existing natural path to that of another, in a different watershed, constitutes an infringement upon the riparian rights of the downstream users Kelley and Gabrielli.

These rights are established in California Water Law as it applies to riparian users. Our downstream domestic use of this water began before, but was registered in 1982 with the State Water Resources Control Board and recorded in Statement of Water Diversion and Use, No. SO11135.

We therefore request and urge you to return the water to its previous, natural course. Any continued diversion of this water will constitute a provocation adverse to our water rights, and we shall seek other such remedies as the law allows.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same water shed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian water user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or to divert water which originates in a different watershed, or return flows from use of groundwater.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Statements of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by a riparian and pre-1914 appropriative water users. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversion, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include:
